The Irish Georgian Society and Dublin City Council have assembled a team of conservation experts to present a series of talks on the history and significance of Dublin's period houses and practical advice on their conservation.

Attendance at the talks will greatly benefit owners of all periods and types of houses, from the modest Edwardian artisan dwelling to the substantial red-bricks of the Victorian suburbs and the fine townhouses of our Georgian city squares, providing an 'A to Z' for their care and conservation.

You can book talks individually for €15 each or book for the whole course for a discounted rate of €125. Talk attendees will be sent a Zoom link to the pre-recorded lecture at 1pm each Tuesday, which is available to watch for seven days from issue.

The Conserving your Dublin Period House Course is an action of the Dublin City Heritage Plan and fulfils Dublin City Council's conservation policy to provide architectural advice to homeowners.

The course will be useful for those considering an application to the Living Cities Initiative, a tax incentive scheme to assist and encourage people to live in the historic inner city areas of Dublin City.

These talks will also benefit building professionals and practitioners and are approved for CPD by the Royal Institute of the Architects of Ireland, Engineers Ireland, the Irish Planning Institute and the Heritage Contractors.

About Dublin City Council

The Dublin City Council Heritage Office is part-funded by The Heritage Council and is concerned with refining and promoting an understanding and appreciation of the architectural, archaeological and cultural heritage of the city.

The Conservation Office of the Planning & Property Development Department provides professional advice to owners of protected structures on conservation issues, and oversees conservation grants and planning in relation to protected structures.

About the Irish Georgian Society

The Society's purpose is to encourage the appreciation and conservation of Ireland's architecture and decorative arts. It is a charitable organisation founded in 1958 with 2,000 members. Membership is open to everyone; by joining you support the four programmes: Conservation Projects; Buildings at Risk; Scholarship & Publications; Conservation Education

This conservation course is an action of the latter programme, which is supported by the Department of Housing, Local Government and Heritage. Members attend the Society's special events such as Talks, seminars, conferences and tours of architecturally significant buildings in Ireland and abroad, many of which are not accessible to the general public.
